'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY WHY YOU - NOT ME?

In a period of constant revolution, the orderly processes of change of government disappear. Kings are succeeded by sons or daughters in prescribed order; Presidents are elected by the people in accordance with Constitutional procedure. But revolutions throw up governments. Whoever can seize power holds it until someone comes along and establishes himself in power.

The rule of thumb is: Why you - not me? Thus Hitler deprived Hindenberg of lawful authority. True, Hitler was elected but there was no realistic opposition just as Soviet Russia and all revolutionary countries reject the test of opposition. The people really have no voice; they are either dominated by an organized mob or by troops. In a revolution, the voice of the people is loud and harsh at the start, but it soon melts away into a frightened whisper.

In 1917, the call of the revolution was loud in Russia. It was the people's voice and the people moved about shouting and instructing. In 1918, however, it was no longer the people's voice; it had become the party's authority. The dictator-ship of the proletariat had seized power. By 1919 the dictatorship remained but the proletariat had been reduced to a frightened mass. It so remained for 40 years. What it is now, beggars description.

In China, there has been no orderly government since 1850 when the Taiping Rebellion upset the authority of the Manchu Dynasty. However, the Manchus continued somehow to reign although they no longer ruled. The Westerners had moved in by way of the sea, the Russians overland from Siberia, Japan by way of Korea and Manchuria; the Boxer Rebellion further One of the most important laws of many weakened authority; then came the 1912 Revolution and the 1915 Revolution and the attempted establishment of the Republic.

But the Republic was never a republic. It was never a government. Rather, it was a congeries of independent provinces, managed by warlords thority to crack down on industries and who often grouped together. Soon, powerful warlords were killing weaker warlords and some of them made deals with foreign countries. Foul Shooting Is Decisive in Maroon Victory

By ED PALLADINO Freeman Sports Staff

Some pinpoint foul shooting enabled a sputtering Kingston High basketball team to nip Our Lady of Lourdes, 58-49, in a thriller last night at the Kate Walton Field House.

The visitors from Poughkeepsie came into town with an unimpressive 2-5 record but won the respect of their cheering body, numbering over 200 and the home forces, which struggled to their fourth victory in seven starts. The action was hot and heavy throughout and it reached a climax in the final stages of the game when Pete Dalleo of the visitors was ejected for committing a flagrant foul on John Falvey of Kingston. Both benches were emptied as the players came on the court and several fans tried to get into the act. However, cooler heads prevailed and order was restored within minutes. In addition to the ejection of Dalleo, both sides were assessed with a technical foul.

Henderson and Pete Donnelly of Lourdes went out on five personals and Ferrard fouled out for Kingston. It was a rough game and referees Bil Knott and Chris Crespi were kept busy. They tooted 28 personals and a technical on the visitors and 21 personals and a technical on the locals.

Kingston was a vastly im-proved club from the free throw line, connecting 28 times in 39 attempts. Lourdes had 17 for 28 and that was the difference as the losers had one more basket. CAGE JOTTINGS. John Fal-
